

Richmond/Delta

What is the secret to vitality in metro Vancouver? What is crucial to our own personal happiness?

This year, Vancouver Foundation's Vital Signs for Metro Vancouver report set out to discover the source of vitality in our region. As a community foundation, we are dedicated to making our community a better place for everyone. And in order to do this, we need to know our community. And to help us really understand our community, we produce Vital Signs – a report where public opinion and statistics merge together to create a full picture of life in metro Vancouver.

As part of our public opinion survey, we asked residents to grade various issues, identify priorities and answer questions to help us to better understand our communities. And for the first time, we have segmented our results by six sub regions: Vancouver; North Shore; Tri City and Areas; Burnaby/New Westminister; Richmond/Delta and South of the Fraser.

Research methodology

Environics Research Group conducted our online survey, using a representative sample of 1,200 metro Vancouver residents. Citizens were asked two questions in each of the 12 key areas, without knowing any of the research findings:

Citizen Grade

Citizens were asked to assign a letter grade A, B, C, D or F to an issue. For example, for Children and Youth we asked: How would you rate metro Vancouver when it comes to the well-being of children and youth?

Citizen Priority

From a list of 10 to 15 options, citizens were then asked to identify the most important priority that needs to be addressed in a particular area. Here is an example for Children and Youth we asked: Which one of the following do you believe is the most important priority for improving metro Vancouver's grade on the wellbeing of Children and Youth?

General Questions

Citizens were also asked questions about how they feel about life in our region. Questions range from trust, to personal happiness to their personal sense of belonging.

Grades and Priorities

Here are the results of our citizen grades and priorities for Richmond/Delta and metro Vancouver.

People Metro Vancouver is a model of diversity. But there are still significant disparities in the lives of residents, in the well-being of our seniors and children, and in our sense of belonging. Developing connections and building trust with each other can help overcome these disparities and enhance the vitality of our communities.

Society Metro Vancouver is a recreational hub with a vibrant cultural scene. Many of us lead healthy lifestyles, but the challenge lies in offering equal opportunities to everyone – for leisure, learning and health. We face inequities in education and growing obesity levels, but overall we do well as a region.
